

Free workshops for anti-fracking groups

Campaign planning: Get to grips with the issues you're facing and use creative tools to develop a birds-eye view of the future.

Direct action: Learn skills to take safe direct action, learn about the roles needed, and reflect on your own boundaries.

Know your rights: Knowledge is power. Learn about common fracking protest offences and what to do in a stop and search.

Sustaining yourself and your group: Develop practices that support your wellbeing and help your group thrive and become resilient for the long haul.

No time for a workshop? We give phone advice on any of the above areas – give us a ring or email to arrange a time.

Making collaborative decisions: Focus on the values, attitudes and behaviours that support collaborative decision making.

Facilitating effective meetings: Learn to facilitate effective and fun meetings and learn to facilitate difficult meetings.

Exploring power dynamics: Working on your power dynamics so everyone feels empowered, and so the group grows stronger and becomes more effective.

Working through conflict: Learn still to deal with conflict in your own group, so the group gets stronger, more resilient & more effective. If your group is going through conflict, we offer a mediation/conflict facilitation service.

Want help with a meeting? We can help you plan your meeting, and can facilitate if you need an outside facilitator.

Navigate is a small team of experienced facilitators and trainers. We used to be known as Seeds for Change Oxford.

Get in touch!
Find out how we could support your group, join us on Facebook and Twitter, sign up to our mailing list.

Our workshops for anti-fracking groups are free, you just pay our travel costs.

www.navigate.org.uk